An Introduction to Our Firm

Feather & Gill Architects is a unique, award-winning firm with extensive expertise in both the design and building facets of construction. This seamless blend of hands-on experience, from the drawing board to the construction site, is a valuable benefit for each client we work with.

As the owner of Feather & Gill Architects, Dan Featheringill first gained 25+ years of general contractor experience before becoming a licensed architect in New Mexico and Colorado. Having worked in both the design and construction arenas gives Dan incisive insight into issues that may arise during the building process. It also helps to ensure a smooth transition between the inspiration of the design phase and the more practical realities of construction.

Excellence & Experience

Dan Featheringill's projects have gained a reputation for their incredible attention to detail. Rich, quality materials and fine finishes add color, texture and warmth. The use of craftsmen, rather than laborers, adds artisanal authenticity and enduring quality to each stage of building. From traditional and non-traditional design to the adaptive reuse of existing structures, each project is an artistic example of form meeting function.

This unwavering commitment to only the best in both design and construction has earned Feather & Gill Architects numerous accolades, including an award in the recent Santa Fe Area Home Builders Association 2008 "Parade of Homes."

Committed to serving his community, Dan has been involved in many ways: as president of the Santa Fe AIA, on the board of the Santa Fe Area Home Builders Association, and as a mayoral appointee to the City of Santa Fe Historic Board, among others.

At Feather & Gill Architects our first priority is your satisfaction. Every project we undertake is treated with the utmost care and our goal is to always surpass the client's expectations. We look forward to talking to you about your project.

Dan Featheringill AIA, LEED AP

LICENSED in COLORADO
and NEW MEXICO

Dan Featheringill brings a unique viewpoint to the design of his projects, having been a General

Contractor for over 25 years prior to becoming an architect. Dan knows how to meet the goals of both the client and the project, while keeping a keen eye on the budget.

Working with a U.S. Green Building Council LEED accredited professional brings design values to the project that keep energy costs low, using materials that will minimize the impact on our earth. Feather & Gill Architects offers the complete package: an intelligent complement of design, building, and environmental expertise.
